(LEGAL NAME - PRINT) first middle last

The High School Completion Status Form is requested to confirm that you have a high school diploma or recognized equivalent. The U.S. Department of Education requires all Title IV aid granting institutions to confirm that students have a high school diploma or recognized equivalent before they can receive Title IV aid. More than likely, you are being requested to submit this form because on the FAFSA you indicated that your high school completion status was 'home schooled' or 'none of the above'.

To complete this form, check the appropriate box below that most accurately reflects your high school completion status. Additionally, please ensure that you submit all information and documentation requested.

 High School Diploma

- Submit a copy of your high school diploma or a copy of your high school transcript that lists the date that your high school diploma was conferred.

 General Educational Development (GED)

- Submit a copy of your General Educational Development (GED) certificate or GED transcript.

 Home Schooled

- If your state's law required you to obtain a secondary school completion credential for homeschool (other than a high school diploma or its recognized equivalent), submit a copy of that credential.
- If your state's law does not require a homeschooled student to obtain a secondary school completion credential (other than a high school diploma or its recognized equivalent), submit a transcript that is signed by your parent or legal guardian that lists the secondary coursework completed and that certifies that you completed homeschooling at the secondary level.

 Passage of State-Authorized Examination

- Submit a certificate that demonstrates that you passed a state-authorized examination (for example, the Test Assessing Secondary Completion (TASC) or the High School Equivalency Test (HiSET)) that the state recognizes as the equivalent of a high school diploma.
